MARAUDERS HIT ATLANTIC WALL

Nazis Channel Defense Plastered Third Time in 24 Hours by U. S. Planes.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Feb. 9—U. S. Marauders roared back to northern France to pound German "Atlantic Wall" installations today for the third time in little more than 24 hours. They were accompanied by RAF medium, light and fighter-bombers.

The daylight formations swung out after RAF night bomber-struck objectives in Germany and France, including the Rhone aircraft engine factory at Limoges without loss.

The renewed pounding followed daylong attacks upon the continent yesterday, highlighted by a heavy Flying Fortress blow upon Frankfurt.

Some big bombers were observed returning later from the direction of Boulogne and Calais as other formations were setting out.

Yesterday's Flying Fortress attack on Frankfurt was the third such assault on that city in 11 days.

A communique said 19 German planes were downed during the Frankfurt operation. American fighters accounting for 16 while the others fell to the bombers. Two other Nazi planes were destroyed by RAF Typhoons over Britiany.

Allied losses for the day were 12 heavy bombers, one medium bomber, one light bomber, two fighter-bombers and nine fighters the communique said.

Targets in northern France were subjected to a dawn to dusk pounding by hundreds of allied planes including U. S. Liberators and Marauders.

BACK RAYBURN FOR 2ND PLACE ON FALL BALLOT

Battle Developing Over Running Mate for President Roosevelt.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Feb 9 — An early move to seek convention pledges for House Speaker Sam Rayburn of Texas emphasized today the unusual attention that politicians are directing toward the Democratic vice presidential nomination this year.

With President Roosevelt still turning aside fourth term inquiries, some practical politicians are conceding him the nomination on the first ballot and working to get their choice installed as his running mate, with an eye to the future.

One high Democratic official said there was no doubt in his mind that—if the President runs again—this year's vice presidential candidate would have a head start on every one else in the 1948 race for the top nomination.

Besides that this politician observed there always was a possibility that if Mr. Roosevelt was elected for a fourth term and the war ended, he might resign to head a bipartisan delegation to the peace conference.

Some of the party members think Vice President Wallace may be dumped overboard and even Wallace who has predicted the President will run again said in San Francisco this week he didn't know who the vice presidential candidate would be.

The vice presidential question came up at President Roosevelt's press-radio conference yesterday but correspondents got little light on the Chief Executive's views.

His answer to a straight-to-the point question as to whether he would "accept a fourth term nomination" was that he had no news on that at the time.

It was a stock reply which the President had used repeatedly. In fact, he called it an old killer of stories.

Mr Roosevelt, who awarded dunce caps to reporters who asked third term questions in 1940, displayed a willingness to receive political questions yesterday. He even said he loved to have them asked.

The President advised reporters to read the sermon on the mount.

Here are some of the passages they found in that oft-quoted bit of scripture:

"Ask and it shall be given you, seek and ye shall find."

"Blessed are the peacemakers for they shall be called the children of God."

"Let not thy left hand know what thy right hand doeth."

"Take therefore no thought for the morrow for the morrow shall take thought for the things of itself."

"Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof."

Mr Roosevelt told a reporter he had come to the wrong place to find out about a "weird" story that there was to be no campaign and that the election was to be postponed a year. The President said a lot of people had not read the Constitution but he had.

Support of Bricker Reaffirmed by Burton

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS O. Feb 9—Governor Bricker said yesterday Sen Harold H Burton of Cleveland had "reaffirmed emphatically" he would support the governor's bid for the Republican presidential nomination.

The senator, in a letter to Bricker, noted that published accounts had called that Burton might seek the nomination. He was wrong, the senator added, to assure Bricker of his support and to say he was "pleased" at being chosen as candidate for delegate-at-large pledged to the governor.

Bricker left today for Washington to deliver, at a Lincoln day dinner for the Republican congressional delegation Thursday night one of the major addresses of his campaign. Bricker said he also would address the National Press club at noon Friday and then answer questions of newsmen.

CISTERNA, MAIN DEFENSE POINT, POUNDED HARD

Germans Claim To Have Advanced Several Miles Into Beachhead.

By The Associated Press

Allied Planes destroyed the greater part of Cisterna, main German stronghold in the siege area from the Rome beachhead, into which the Nazis said officials today they had advanced several miles.

Headquarters at Algiers gave no confirmation of the German communique claim and spoke only of enemy patrols probing positions below Rome. Dispatches told of increasing German pressure and intense artillery fire against the American and British troops in the pocket, last reported 14 miles long and eight miles deep.

Some advances were claimed on the main Fifth army front, 60 miles below the Rome sector, where the Americans had occupied a fourth of the ruins of Cassino and climbed at one time to within 75 yards of the Benedictine abbey on Mt. Cassino. An attack in full strength was launched against the cliffs surrounding the dominating monastery before dawn yesterday. The Germans had been holding fast there for six days in a violent battle.

Claim Many Ships Sunk

A German report likened the waters off the supply port of Nettuno below Rome to a "ship graveyard" as a result of air attacks.

The Germans have converted Cisterna into a fortress. From it they have launched some of their fiercest attacks on the beachhead.

(Today's German communique declared the Nazis had advanced several miles in the bridgehead area capturing 700 prisoners.)

"Strong enemy counter-attacks with support of tanks and naval artillery were repulsed," the bulletin broadcast by Berlin added.

American troops battling into Cassino on the main front have occupied about one-fourth of that town, front dispatches said, and the doughboys at one time fought to within 75 yards of the Benedictine abbey on Mt. Cassino.

The U. S. forces launched a full strength attack in the pre-dawn darkness yesterday to take the cliffs surrounding the monastery on the mountain. The Germans have held the mountain top for six days of stern battle.

Planes Fly 1,500 Sorties

Allied planes flew 1,500 sorties throughout the day, striking hard at German troop concentrations, airfields and railyards over a wide area, and losing not a single plane.

More guns were brought up to join the artillery barrage supporting the American assault against Cisterna to the east and fighting continued in the streets of that key town.

The Germans still hold the greater portion of Cassino, the crest of Mt. Cassino overlooking it, and still cling to a corridor leading to the town.

On the Eighth army front, a German patrol of 60 men, with weapons including flame-throwers, thrust into allied territory near Orsogna but allied forces killed 11 of them and captured six. The rest of the Nazis fled, abandoning their flame-throwers.

Five German planes were shot down during the day.

Medium bombers, besides hammering Cisterna, bombed the railyards at Siena north of Rome.

Allied warships also joined in the assault, bombarding Formia.

In one sector west of Cisterna, American and German parallel formations attacked simultaneously yesterday in the general confusion. Bayonet fighting between rival patrols was reported from another sector.

At one strategic crossroad called "femina morta" (dead woman) the Germans occupy houses on one side of the road, and the Americans are in houses on the other side.

U. S. Experts Boost Estimate of Jap Plane Production

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Feb 9 — An estimate that Japanese factories are turning out aircraft at a rate of 1,200 or more a month came from high quarters here today, coupled with a report that the Japanese—like the Germans—are concentrating significantly on defensive types.

This report on Nipponese production, about 100 per cent higher than most of the guesses made since Pearl Harbor, would go far to explain the enemy's apparent ability to keep replacing his heavy losses, and indicate his reserve of planes has not been reduced appreciably.

In a little more than a month, from Jan 1 to Feb 6 the Japanese lost more than 700 planes in the Pacific—more than 200 of them destroyed on the ground.

This rate of loss be comes significant, despite the terrific rate of production, in the light of the enemy dependence on aircraft to hold his outer defense lines. The ability of the U. S. Navy to move almost at will in the Pacific, tracking up lightning by the seizure of the Marshalls and the shelling of Paramushiro, coupled with growing pressure in the New Guinea-New Britain area on the Japanese fleet is virtually confined to home waters.

And although the Japanese have adopted the German flying circus technique, shifting their fighter group for concentration at points of actual or imminent attack the system is not yet fool proof for lack because of the enormous distances involved.

U. S. Forces Turn Attention To Other Bases in Marshalls

By The Associated Press

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, PEARL HARBOR, Feb 9—All organized Japanese resistance has been snuffed out on Kwajalein, world's largest atoll Already American warships and planes are diverting fire power from that nerve center of the Marshalls to other fortified atolls.

In the midst of these developments, the overall strategists spoke hopefully of getting "our ground and air forces into China as early as possible" for the showdown against Nippon.

Highly significant, the Navy imposed a policy of semi-secrecy last night in announcing the fleet and air arm were swinging punches elsewhere in the Marshalls. The Navy did not disclose the targets, figuring communications between those supply-severed bases and Japan were precarious and lack of the information would seriously impede the enemy.

Airfields Put in Condition

The attacks occurred Sunday and Monday.

Meanwhile, airfields on Roi and Kwajalein islands in Kwajalein atoll are being repaired and modernized to send planes daily against Marshall bases, already largely neutralized and virtually stripped of air cover.

Based at Kwajalein's spacious lagoon, a large and as yet unchallenged fleet—not even attacked by enemy submarines — was alert against attempts to succor the enemy's Marshall garrisons.

"Organized resistance on Kwajalein atoll has ceased and its capture and occupation have been completed," Adm. Chester W. Nimitz announced yesterday. Conquest was completed eight days after Kwajalein was invaded Jan. 31.

It can now be disclosed that on Feb. 5, the commander-in-chief of the Pacific fleet stood at the invasion scene—some 2,500 miles from Tokyo—and observed:

Henceforth it will be very difficult for the Japanese to use the Marshalls "as bases—even for submarines."

The victory will "serve to speed up the tempo" of the Pacific war.

Shortens Supply Lines

It "definitely shortens communications to the south Pacific and the southwest Pacific."

"It is a great pleasure that we did it with such small losses (280 American dead—8,122 Japanese)."

Japanese plane strength, particularly naval air power, obviously is considerably under its peak.

The enemy lacks destroyers "to escort their supply convoys or to make up an adequate battle fleet."

However, Admiral Nimitz firmly believes Japan cannot be defeated from the sea alone and said his objective is "to get our ground and air forces into China as early as possible."

To correspondents he remarked "the Japs can only be defeated from bases in China" and, although giving no indication of such an offensive time table, added:

"I think that if you'll watch the communiques, you'll see us moving on."

FARMER ACCUSED OF ATTACKING OFFICER

Two Charges Filed by Marion Milk Inspector.

Ross L. Hobson 32, of near Morral was arrested yesterday at 3:45 p. m. near his home on two charges filed by Dr. J. T. Gruber, city milk inspector.

One charged Hobson with assault and battery last Friday, and the other alleged he had sold milk in Marion without permit.

Dr. Gruber, who is 60 years old, told authorities Hobson struck him several times in the face, knocking him down and causing one face injury that required several stitches to close.

The sheriff's office reported that papers in the assault case were served on Hobson Saturday and that he came into the sheriff's office that day and met with James E. Reed, prosecuting attorney, who had drawn the assault charge for Dr. Gruber, and Walter D. Moore, his own attorney. Arrangements were made there for Mr. Moore to enter a not guilty plea in behalf of Hobson, the sheriff's office reported. Hobson was not detained, and apparently was free without bond pending a hearing in municipal court.

Subsequently, Dr. Gruber filed the charge of selling milk in Marion without a permit having this charge prepared by Dorr Williamson, assistant city solicitor. Papers in this case were turned over to the city police.

When he was brought into court yesterday, he pleaded not guilty to the new charge and bonds were set in both charges pending a hearing Friday at 1 p. m. The bond on the assault charge was set at $200, on the permit charge at $25.

Dr. Gruber said the assault took place at Hobson's farm when he went there to see him after learning that he had been selling milk in the city without a permit. He said he also had told Hobson he could not issue him a permit unless some sanitary requirements had been met.

Body of Girl Still Unfound in Pit of Mine Cave-In

By The Associated Press

PITTSTON, Pa., Feb 9—Tired miners built an ever-growing mound of earth today as they dug without rest for the body of a little girl swallowed yesterday by a cavein over an abandoned anthracite mine.

The mound contained 350 tons at noon today but the miners, neighbors of the girl's father, a Navy enlisted man, said it might be increased by several days' further digging before the body of little Jule Ann Fulmer is recovered.

Mrs. Marie Mitchell, aunt of the two-year-old girl, told this story of the tragedy:

She and Jule Ann and the child's five-year-old brother, David, were walking along the sidewalk in a residential street after shopping at a grocery store.

Mrs. Mitchell peeled a tangerine and handed it to Jule Ann, and the child fell back a few steps.

Then the earth cracked.

"I leaped back, pulling Jule with one hand and knocking David back with the other," Mrs Mitchell said.

"But the rush of earth tore Jule from me. There was nothing I could do to save her. She just disappeared."

Elmer Davis Wins OWI Battle with Sherwood

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8—OWI Director Elmer Davis emerged the winner today in his intra-office struggle with Robert Sherwood, chief of the office of war information's overseas branch, over coordination of psychological warfare.

The dispute, which had been referred to the White House, was decided when Davis announced resignation of three top-ranking New York officials of Sherwood's division. Davis had demanded their dismissal in the interest of better coordination, Sherwood had refused.

The officials, whose resignation was announced by Davis' office last night, are James P. Warburg, deputy director for propaganda policy; Joseph Barnes, deputy director for Atlantic operations, and Edd Johnson, chief of the editorial board.

Hitler's Nephew May Serve in U. S. Navy

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Feb. 9 — Adolf Hitler's nephew, William Patrick Hitler, 32, who was rejected for Army service in 1942, may be serving in the United States Navy soon, selected service headquarters here reported yesterday.

Hitler, a British subject who listed the German dictator as his uncle on his draft questionnaire, apparently has passed his physical examination and probably will be accepted for service in the Navy, selective service officials said.

Although William is a British subject, he was required by his draft board to fill out form 304, dealing with aliens and enemy aliens, and the Army refused to accept him. Recently, however, the armed services have withdrawn objections to some form 304 cases and Hitler was permitted to take his pre-induction examination.

William came to this country in 1939 to lecture on Germany. His mother, who accompanied him here, was separated from Alois Hitler, the dictator's half-brother, when William was two years old and, thereafter, made her home in England.

WFA WAGES BATTLE OVER BUTTER STOCK

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 — The war food administration is waging a "behind-the-scenes" fight to hold a 20,000,000-pound bank reserve of butter for possible emergency needs by the military forces, foreign relief agencies, lend-lease recipients, or American civilians.

Pressure is being exerted by consumer and trade groups and some government leaders to release this reserve to civilians now but the food administration is resisting it.

Requests for release of WFA stocks developed after publication of reports that the government held about 130,000,000 pounds of butter on Feb. 1 and that additional supplies were being brought in from Argentina.

The WFA said all but 20,000,000 pounds of the government stocks had been earmarked for the armed services, lend-lease, and other war programs. The 20,000,000 pound stock is being held in what is called a "contingency reserve." Most of that earmarked for the armed services and lend-lease will have been used, officials said, by the time the government re-enters the butter market next April.

IT'S THE Men WHO MAKE THE Erie

Long hours . . . shortage of materials . . . lack of manpower . . . have not prevented the men of Erie and other American Railroads from solving the greatest transportation problem in all history.

And full credit should be given railroad men for their fine spirit of cooperation—their loyalty—their willingness to see the job through.

For it is these qualities in its men that made it possible for Erie to establish a new all-time record of 15 billion ton-miles last year, an increase of 26.4% over 1942 and 40% over 1941.

It is these qualities that enabled Erie to reach a new high record of average daily movement of freight cars.

It is these qualities that give good service to shippers and travelers at times when demands for transportation reach unprecedented new heights.

It is the men who make the Erie.

And these men will continue to give America the world's finest and most economical transportation in war or peace.

COOPERATIVE CENSOR

Helps Marion Soldier Fund Brother—It Was Easy.

A ... service ... location, headed "... somewhere in South America" ... signed by a former Marion man now stationed in ... It's an interesting story about three Marion brothers, all in the armed forces.

According to the article Staff Sgt. Gerry Peterson, stationed at an Army post in South America, recently wrote his brother Cpl. David Peterson at the London, Neb. Army Air base expressing concern about a third brother, John, an infantry captain, whom he hadn't heard from in some time. At the end of Gerry's letter to Dave there was a postscript added by the censor. "I am feeling fine and have been wondering for some time where Gerry was stationed. I'll write him tonight. Yours, John."

Now Dave and Gerry hear from the captain regularly since he adds a few notes at the bottom of their letters after censoring them. The three are sons of Mr. and Mrs. David H. Peterson of 264 North Seffner avenue.

In 1943 2,250,000 cords of pulpwood were needed to manufacture containers for shipping food, supplies and munitions overseas.

SHOOTING OF WOMAN BLAMED ON DAUGHTER

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Feb. 9—Mrs. Patricia Goodbody, 28-year-old daughter of the slain Mrs. Frank Starr Williams, describes as "completely absurd and untrue" a veteran police lieutenant's theory that her mother was accidentally killed in her Drake hotel room Jan. 19 after they had engaged in a struggle for a revolver.

The latest theory in the puzzling case was advanced yesterday by Lieut. John Quinn, one of the first officers to arrive at the scene of the crime. In contradiction to [illegible] Mrs. Goodbody and her mother, and I do not believe that there was a third party in the room."

Quinn said Mrs. Williams had taken a gun from a trunk and shot at her daughter and Patricia ducked. I think that there was a struggle and that another shot went wild. I think Mrs. Williams then was not accidentally."

Esther Mrs. Goodbody testified an unidentified, middleaged woman, hiding in the bathroom when she entered her mother's room had fired at her but without effect. The assailant then ran out of the bathroom and fired several more shots at her mother. Mrs. Williams, 55, who died 24 hours after the shooting, had told police: "I never saw her before. I can't understand it at all. She just came out shooting without a word."

The inquest was continued to March 3.

By The Associated Press

WOOSTER, O., Feb. 9—A gloomy picture of [illegible] farm products in 1944 and [illegible] was painted today by Edmund Secrest, director of the state's agricultural experiment station here [illegible] Secrest said that [illegible] years for a majority of Ohio farms would be the worst in [illegible] three years. He attributed this forecast to [illegible] drought, poor and [illegible] shortages, increasing [illegible] and [illegible] army of [illegible] fewer, [illegible] feeds and [illegible] and a stock piles.

"People do not think of 1943 as being a dry year," Dr. Secrest declared. "That is largely because of the wet spring, particularly May, which was the wettest in the last 50 years. But the truth is that 1943 was one of the five driest years of the last 56."

He added the state has just experienced a six-months dry spell and "unless there is substantial relief this spring our 1944 production will suffer. The wheat crop is already in bad shape because of the lack of moisture. However, it can be helped by favorable weather from now on out."

Secrest predicted a March like last year when freezing and thawing caused bad heaving would result in the "poorest wheat harvest in years, despite our 400,000-acre increase in planting."

"However," he cautioned "no one should anticipate a crop harvest. You cannot tell until the grain is cut just what the yield will be. * * * Favorable weather can save the entire crop and crop outlook. We must have relief from this drought."

Turning to milk and poultry prospects, Secrest said a decrease was certain because "we have about ten per cent less feed in the state and ten per cent more consuming units, cows, chickens, hogs and beef stock." He explained that dairy and poultry products required high protein concentrates which he said were scarce.

Japs Say U. S. Airmen Kill 58 Missionaries

The Tokyo radio asserted today American airmen had killed 58 and seriously wounded 80 missionaries or members of their families in a machine-gun attack against Japanese barges near Wewak, New Guinea, last Sunday.

The "authorities concerned" will soon submit a detailed report to the Vatican about the "inhuman machine-gunning," said the broadcast.

Bill Puts Restrictions on Marriage Marathon

By The Associated Press

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 9—A bill which would require a thrice-divorced person to obtain supreme court permission for remarriage within three years was introduced in the New York legislature today to curb those who the sponsor said "turn marriage into a hobby."

The bill would require an applicant for permission to remarry to establish his good faith "to the satisfaction of the court."

"Marriages contracted merely to collect a string of ex-wives are sacrilegious and inimacable to the welfare of the state," the sponsor, Democratic Sen. Louis Heller, said. "Those people who enter such marriage affront the majesty and dignity of the state."

Bryson Wartime Prohibition Bill Has Support of One-Third of Voters in Poll

By GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., Feb. 9—The Bryson wartime prohibition bill, which seeks to prevent the manufacture or sale of alcoholic beverages until the war is over, has the support of approximately one-third of all voters interviewed from coast to coast in the Institute survey. The other two-thirds say they are opposed to it.

During preliminary hearings in congress last month on the Bryson bill, dry witnesses claimed that "week-end sprees" and "payday drinking" are largely responsible for the present [illegible] the nation. Further [illegible] number of cases [illegible] while making [illegible] accept a national dry law, as a special wartime measure, only to be greater than the number who want permanent prohibition. [illegible] the country as a whole [illegible] the passage of the Bryson bill [illegible] the country [illegible] the bill.

"There is a [illegible] between what people [illegible] the sale of liquor in this country [illegible] the war is over. Do you think this bill should be passed?"

The vote of those [illegible] pondents is:

In favor of wartime prohibition	36%
Opposed	64

Only one person in every 20 (5 per cent) expressed no opinion in the survey.

A test of sentiment on the idea of permanent national prohibition, regardless of whether we are at war or peace, brought the same vote—36 per cent in favor, 64 per cent opposed. This represents little change in prohibition sentiment since the last Institute survey in August, 1943, when the vote was 69 per cent "wet."

Backers of the Bryson bill will undoubtedly be heartened by the comparatively large "dry" vote which today's survey found among the women of the country. The women are considerably more in favor of wartime prohibition than the men are, as the following results indicate:

	Women	Men
Favor wartime prohibition	42%	30%
Opposed	58	70

SENATOR WANTS TAX RETURNS SIMPLIFIED

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Feb 9—Sen... (D-Ga) of the senate finance committee said today that simplification of house committee approved legislation would eliminate a great deal of the present confusion in the income tax structure.

George said he believed approximately 52,000,000 of the 50,000,000 taxpayers could be spared the need of filing any returns at all, beginning in 1943, by making the final tax liability on the withholding levy against their wages and salaries.

The senate group has before it a number of ... Rep. Robertson (D-Va) bills as a quick cure for some of the current confusion, the treasury arrange to make out the tax returns of several millions of taxpayers having incomes below $5,000. These persons are eligible to use the "short form" return.

Robertson would have the government give them the option of simply filing with the treasury a statement of their earnings, family status and credits, and then let the treasury compute the tax and submit its bill.

This simply would be a temporary way to deal with the 1943 returns, pending enactment of a general simplification law. The internal revenue bureau, however, has termed the suggestion impracticable, claiming the bureau has not sufficient help to do the figuring for the taxpayers.

National Farmers Union President James G. Patton today urged President Roosevelt to veto the $2,315,200,000 new added revenues bill and "demand a showdown with congress."

It is estimated that approximately 40,000,000 persons are in axis labor gangs, prisons, or concentration camps, or have been driven from their homes because of the war.

German Glider Rocket Bombs Menace To Allied Invaders

By DON WHITEHEAD
AP War Correspondent

NAPLES, Feb. 9—When the great invasion of the European continent begins, one of the big responsibilities of the allied airforces will be to prevent any concentrated use by the Germans of rocket-propelled glider bombs.

There is no breach of security in saying this new aerial weapon of the Nazis is a potent threat against shipping. Both the Germans and the allies know it.

An invasion fleet at anchor is like a flock of sitting ducks unless air cover can intercept the control plane from which the gliders are directed by radio.

Anti-aircraft fire is only partly effective against the small winged projectiles, because they sweep down on their targets swiftly and are difficult to hit. As a matter of fact, it is usually only a lucky hit when one is stopped by ack-ack fire.

The Germans used glider bombs against the invasion fleet at Salerno and again at Anzio during the Fifth army's behind-the-lines thrust. Censorship prevented disclosure of the full effectiveness of this weapon until Winston Churchill announced its use at Salerno. Again at Anzio correspondents were forbidden to say the Germans were using rocket bombs against shipping.

Restrictions Lifted

Since then, however, these restrictions have been lifted. Now correspondents may tell something of what the rocket bombs are like and how the Germans use them.

From descriptions pieced together by eyewitnesses who have watched these winged weapons attack, it is learned the bomb is about 20 to 30 feet long, with tail fins acting as a stabilizer and rudder.

It has a wing-spread of some 15 feet and in flight it looks like a small plane.

Apparently it is armor-piercing. At Salerno, one of them that hit a ship penetrated thick steel deck-plates and exploded in the craft's interior.

The bomb is attached to the belly of a twin-engined Heinkel bomber. When still some distance from the target, the bomber plane's pilot releases the glider and drops the flaps on his plane's wings to slow his own speed, until the bomb shoots ahead into the pilot's vision.

Controlled from Plane

From the time of its release, the glider apparently is controlled visually and directed by radio. The glider can make a sharp turn to swoop in on its target from the side, if necessary.

Except when the control plane is in trouble from fighter attack or ack-ack, or the glider is hit by shrapnel, the bomb appeared to observers to be under excellent control at all times. Many of them fall harmlessly into the sea, either because the pilot loses control at the last minute, or because they overshoot the target.

Whether the enemy can muster a large fleet of rocket-bomb gliders for use against an invasion is not known, but it is logical to assume—and the allied air forces must go on the assumption—that the Germans can concentrate large numbers against an invasion area. ... the ... loses ... pilot ... glider ... of ...

Airman Who Jumped To Save Life Decorated

By The Associated Press

MAXWELL FIELD, Ala., Feb. 9—The air medal with oak leaf cluster has been awarded to Staff Sergeant T. C. Weaver, who parachuted to certain imprisonment in Germany so that wounds received in aerial action might be treated.

Bleeding profusely from a wound inflicted by enemy fire during a bombing mission, Sgt. Weaver's pilot ordered him to jump over enemy territory as probably the only chance to save his life.

Weeks later through the International Red Cross a report was received that Sgt. Weaver had been taken prisoner and was recovering in a German prison hospital where he was under treatment.

Warden Quits Rather Than Direct Execution

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA, Kas., Feb. 9—Warden M. F. Amrine of the Kansas State prison resigned last month rather than supervise an execution.

He handed the resignation to Gov. Andrew Schoeppel shortly after the state's chief executive denied clemency for Fred L. Brady and set April 15 as the date of his death by hanging.

"I do not wish to be a participant when the state turns to the barbarous rite of killing," Amrine, with 30 years of prison service, said in explaining his opposition to capital punishment.

The execution of Brady, convicted of a holdup slaying, will be the first under Kansas law in more than 70 years. From 1872 to 1935 capital punishment was banned.

4TH WAR LOAN

We're Fighting an Invisible Enemy, Too . . .

As tons of bombs rain down on enemy cities and millions of our fighting men stand ready to man the invasion barges, a grim war is being waged here at home, too. It is an economic war, but it is no less real or vital to final and complete victory.

Here we are fighting the battle against inflation . . . that scourge of war that leaves in its wake waste, desolation and suffering long after hostilities have ceased.

The most powerful weapon we have is the purchase of War Bonds to safeguard our post-war economy.

Actually, every dollar we put into War Bonds is helping win two wars . . . the one against our enemies without . . . the other against the economic enemy within.

Let us resolve to buy more War Bonds ourselves in 1944 . . . let us insure the success of the 4th War Loan Bond Drive by not only buying extra bonds ourselves . . . but encouraging our neighbors to buy more Bonds, too.

In Order of Importance

REP. RANULF COMPTON of Connecticut probably has performed more distinguished service than most of his colleagues debating the ins and outs of soldier voting by reminding them that the issue can't hold a candle among soldiers themselves to the possibility that Postmaster General Walker may keep them from getting their quota of Varga girls.

The representative says his mail gives the Varga girl question seven to one over ballots and 14 to 1 over a national service act. As a soldier of the first World war, he finds no mystery in this. Pin-up girls, he explains, are a symbol of homesickness. They represent what fighting men want to come back to and what they regret having left behind them.

There are, no doubt, some soldiers and sailors who ponder the fact they won't be able to go to the polls in November and become preoccupied with thoughts of casting a free and untrammeled Australian ballot. There probably are some soldiers who would rather have a full ballot, or perhaps even a chance to vote in the primary, than a whole trunkful of the smoothest pin-up girls in circulation, with a box of cookies and home-made candy thrown in as a bonus. There even may be some soldiers who do not detect a whiff a guff in the roaring words of congressmen about the importance of ballots to their dear constituents so far from home, but chances are that Rep. Compton is right. The Varga girl issue raised by Postmaster Walker is worrying our fighting men, more than the great question of getting the kind of ballots in their hands that will be most useful to the candidates running for office next November.

The Terms Need Defining

LOOSE use of the phrases "full employment" and "jobs for everybody" in discussions of post-war aims is a chicken that will come home to roost, unless it is penned up now.

This country already has had experience with it, in the matter of unemployment totals which were used during the depression. It will be recalled that they varied widely, depending on their source and what the source was trying to prove.

Objection was raised in some quarters to the practice of including unemployed persons who had not been recently employed, on the ground that their condition had no direct bearing on the comparative statistics of unemployment. At the other extreme, there were some who insisted that unemployment should be the total of all persons who were employable whether or not they were in the labor market. In 1935, even the relatively conservative estimates of AFL and the National Industrial Conference board varied month to month by as much as 4 per cent, an important discrepancy in totals that reached almost 14,000,000.

It is statistically feasible, at least, to postulate a post-war employment total that would represent an optimum condition of production, yet leave a considerable margin of actual unemployment. The margin could be made still wider by manipulation of statistics, with intent to prove that the unemployment was undesirably large. Such leeway in the use of figures being brought to bear as evidence on questions related to national policy is dangerous and confusing. Until the terms "full employment" and "jobs for everybody" can be defined, their use should be restricted. Even in the present war emergency, the United States does not have jobs for everybody; the nation should not blackmail its own future with demands that cannot be satisfied.

It Isn't Necessarily So

VEGETABLE growers don't expect Victory gardeners to stay in the game long, once the war is over, according to the secretary of the Ohio State Vegetable Growers association. The gentlemen may be right, but a Victory gardener will be inclined to wonder, before reaching the same conclusion in midwinter.

If their own testimony is credible, what they produced in their gardens last summer was less important than what they produced in themselves, aside from its considerable impact on the national food supply. One easily gets the impression some of them even would be willing to throw the garden truck away as byproduct and keep the self-satisfaction of making it grow as their only reward.

There is the possibility, too, that the professional growers may be doing a little wishful thinking. They cannot help but be nettled by descriptions of yields and qualities far beyond their own highest standards, unless they remember to discount the exaggerations 50 per cent, which is a safe average. A man who has made a full-time career of raising vegetables can be expected to feel a twinge of jealousy when he hears Victory gardeners talking about peas as big as tomatoes and tomatoes as big as pumpkins.

In the middle of winter, when everything seems possible, few Victory gardeners can think of anything that would divert them from endless determination to raise bigger and better vegetables. By next August, when bugs and the weather have sobered them, the prospect may look different.

Venice, Italy, is farther north than Vladivostok, Siberia.

News Behind the News

Worldwide Freedom of Air Called a Flop; Each Nation Expected To Exercise Control.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 — Freedom of the air has flopped.

The original new deal notion that the landing fields of the new air world be opened to free-for-all traffic has dropped quietly into the limbo of impossible ideas alongside the quart-of-milk-a-day. It could not be done, even if we wanted to, and we don't want to open our domestic fields and business to every nation in the world.

Instead, the inner government policy is developing behind a plan set forth by Chairman L. Welch Pogue, of the civil aeronautics board, in a little noticed speech to the New York Herald-Tribune forum.

Mr. Pogue is an outstanding young government executive in this local political swirl where young brains are rare. He wanted the new air world set up on an international agreement among nations to allow gasoline reservicing facilities at all airports, but restricting the commercial business (landing and taking on passengers) to two-way agreements between individual nations.

Sovereignty of Air

Sovereignty of the air and over the business thereby would be retained by each nation except as specifically modified by mutually beneficial agreements.

Even less observed was the unofficial response of Lord Beaverbrook that this seemed a good way of going about the problem. There the matter now rests, with no negotiations yet under way. (Beaverbrook was reported secretly in this country some weeks ago, but if he was here, it was on a personal mission not connected with this matter.)

Down deep at the core of the problem is a sensational lobbying struggle of Pan-American Airways to get a monopoly on all foreign American business in this post-war air world.

Governmental Connections

A congressman, Sheppard, California Democrat, gave some of the inside of this in a speech Feb. 3. Sheppard charged that Pan-American's dynamo president, Juan Trippe, has made connections throughout this government (foreign economic Administrator Leo T. Crowley is on Trippe's board, as is Robert Lehman, a partner of Lehman brothers, and State Under-Secretary Stettinius is Trippe's brother-in-law). Sheppard told of a lobbying entertainment house lavishly maintained here by Trippe.

All that Sheppard implied about Pan-American's hold on the government is true. Trippe built up Pan-American from nothing by the use of government money, subsidies, and diplomatic power. But he seems now heading into a popular demand for post-war air competition.

The leading domestic lines (American Airways, TWA, Eastern) have all filed applications to extend their lines into foreign service after the war. They may produce just as much power from interested senators and congressmen as Trippe has wielded formerly. Pan-American does not function within the borders of the country. They do. My guess is Pan-American will be beaten.

Need for Competition

Necessities of competition for the people are obvious. Scarcities and government controls have eliminated competition in serving the public during this war. Look at the results in railroad service, restaurant service, or in any line. In a capitalistic system, competition is essential for public good; monopolies are repugnant.

If Mr. Pogue wins, the government probably will enter agreement with Britain for a division of mutual commercial business. The British want to allow us only 50-50 rating with their comparatively inconsequential Imperial Airways, but obviously we must insist upon carrying American-originated business to the fullest possible extent. Furthermore, the simplest solution with the British does not even seem to be under consideration.

Foreign Bases for U. S.

It is unthinkable that South Pacific airports bathed in Marine blood or built by American Seabees on British possessions (Guadalcanal, etc.), shall return to exclusive British commercial or military use after this war—especially as Britain will owe us a tremendous lend-lease debt which she cannot otherwise pay. If there is any excuse for us failing to acquire new world air bases for lend-lease balances, it has not yet been offered.

Westbrook Pegler has columnized contrary advice on the ground that we will acquire natives with the bases, whom the New Dealers will feed and vote under WPA. This half-baked deduction was concocted on one of Mr. Pegler's few bad days.

The bases are essential for military protection primarily, secondarily valuable for commercial air purposes in the new air world. Uplift of natives is a separate comparatively minor consideration which this government may or may not undertake. Mr. Pegler's objection therefore, was only obscurely humorous.

War Bond Thought

The big corporations are putting their post-war reserves into government bonds. Why don't you?

Today you cannot get an icebox, a new car, a new radio. When these are available after the war, you may not have the money, but you will if you buy a war bond.

Bonds are cash. They will always be as good as money—and better because they pay interest. They are better than money in the bank because you are less likely to go to the trouble of cashing them and spending, unless you have an actual need.

The insurance companies and the banks may get after me for saying this, but as they take your money and invest it largely in government bonds, generally absorbing profits for themselves, why don't you take their profit by buying the bonds yourself?

Draft To Miss 5 of 6 Dads

By Jack Stinnett

WASHINGTON — A good many months ago, I wrote a piece urging pre-Pearl Harbor fathers to quit worrying about their draft status. There was nothing wrong with the piece then or now, but the military powers have won their fight to draw heavily on pre-war family men to bring military manpower up to what they believe necessary goals.

I still believe, however, that there is no need for panic generally among those fathers who cannot help being a bit worried over what is going to happen to their families, if they are inducted as bucko privates or apprentice seamen.

After a canvass of War Manpower and Selective Service records, it appears that about one of six pre-Pearl Harbor fathers between the ages of 18 and 37, inclusive, stands a good chance of induction by midsummer. In round figures, this means approximately 1,000,000.

If I remember correctly, this is almost twice the prediction made last summer. But the manpower situation has changed considerably since then and may again—in either direction.

July Goal

The military manpower goal has been set at around 11,300,000 for July 1. To reach this goal, Selective Service will take all the 50,000 draft available among the 100,000 17-year-olds who become 18 every month. About 30,000 are deferred for physical reasons or for farm work, and 20,000 more already are in the services.

A few more will come from reclassification of 4-F's and from a re-examination of occupational deferments now under way—but not many.

The military forces are believed now to be only about 800,000 men below their goal, but they are discharging men at the rate of 100,000 a month. That means around 1,300,000 men will be needed before June 30. If the 17-year-olds can be counted on for 250,000 plus perhaps another 50,000 to 100,000 drawn from reclassifications, around 1,000,000 fathers will have to be drawn.

The Source

From what group of fathers will this 1,000,000 come? From the 1,250,000 physically able, non-deferred for occupational reasons and not actual hardship cases, which, by Selective Service definitions, are very few.

The main manpower problem now facing the government, despite wails from WMC and Selective Service, is distribution. The only excuse for the proposed National Service act, other than to prevent strikes and provide a psychological incentive for doing necessary work, is to solve that distribution problem. The chances for any such act, however, are becoming less daily.

No Hara Kiri

When Lt. Tommy Harmon, University of Michigan All-America back, was brought to Washington after he had been reported missing in both the South American jungles and Jap-occupied China, his greatest concern was to get back home to Ann Arbor to see the folks. "Mother and dad are both getting along in years," he explained. "Their health hasn't been any too good, either, and those telegrams from the war department don't exactly build them up."

Harmon gave the lie to the stories about all Jap pilots being suicide fliers. He told about one who was shot down and managed to land safely. When surrounded for capture he came out with his hands over his head shouting, "Don't shoot, don't shoot! Me no hara kiri boy."

Psychic Nibbling

By The Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO — Munching between meals, though trying to reduce, is nothing but "psychic frustrations, with unconscious compensations by nibbling," declares Dr. Horace Gray, clinical professor in the Stanford University School of Medicine. He says reducing boils down to applied will power and that habits of overeating must be stopped suddenly.

Sieges of Great Capitals

Modern Warfare Revises Old Rules.

WHILE American and British troops battled to hold an approach to Rome, Russian advances lifted the siege of Leningrad, for two centuries capital of Russia under the name of St. Petersburg. Air raids are further devastating Berlin, capital of Germany. The sieges of capitals are making some of the most momentous news of the war.

In the past the capture of the capital was usually the sign of complete victory. When Napoleon occupied Berlin, he was master of Prussia; when he occupied Vienna, he was master of Austria; when he took Rome, he was master of the Pope's temporal dominions. Failure of the Allies and, the United States to occupy Berlin in 1918 was a token to many Germans that Germany had not really suffered complete defeat in World war I.

In modern war the aim has been to destroy the enemy's armies rather than concentrate against his capital. In the Franco-German war of 1870-71, the Prussian forces first overwhelmed the main French armies. After that the Prussian occupation of Paris seemed relatively unimportant, especially since the French king had been captured in the field.

In World War I the first German sweep through northern France left Paris at the mercy of the invader. Germany disdained to occupy the French capital, lest it delay the advance against the French and British forces. That was a strategic mistake, because the garrison left in Paris advanced out of the city against the German west flank, causing the entire German line to retreat.

IN MODERN military advances, relying largely on tanks, a large city seems to be the most difficut nut to crack. The rubble in the streets impedes the "land battleships," and from behind the ruins of buildings the defenders can stop men advancing on foot. The turning point of World war II was the inability of the Germans to take Stalingrad after they had obtained footholds in part of the city. In the Spanish civil war, Madrid withstood siege for more than two years, during most of which some of the suburbs were in Franco's hands.

Much depends on the relation of the capital to the rest of the country. The Germany of 1938 could hardly have survived the capture of Berlin. But now that Hitler has vastly expanded German territory and moved much of the German heavy industry into his annexations, Germany can evidently fight on without Berlin. It may be, similarly, that Japan, reported to be feverishly decentralizing her industries and administrative centers, could survive for a time after the loss of Tokyo.

IN THE vast expanse of the Soviet Union, loss of Moscow in 1941 would not have ended Russian resistance. In 1812, Napoleon did not know what to do with Moscow when he had it; he had expected Russia to surrender after Moscow fell. The Chinese continued to resist staunchly after their capital of the time, Nanking, was occupied in 1937.

Washington, D. C., was threatened with capture several times durin gthe Civil war; its loss would not have caused the north to give up. The south capitulated when Richmond was about to be taken, but by that time the southern cause had become hopeless. The British captured Washington in 1814; militarily, the capture meant nothing. During most of the Revolution, Philadelphia was in British hands, but there was plenty of hinterland from which to continue the struggle. The capture of London would not keep the British from fighting on from other parts of the empire.

Delayed Action

San Juan, a provincial capital of Argentina, which was struck by one of nature's blockbusters—an earthquake—is enclosed on three sides by the eastern foothills of the Andes mountains, 650 miles northwest of Buenos Aires. One hundred miles west the Chilean border is marked by peaks 18,000 to 23,000 feet high.

This city of 35,000 had been expecting an earthquake since 1861, when its larger neighbor, Mendoza, was leveled by a similar catastrophe, says National Geographic society. San Juan's streets were made extra wide and houses built low in preparation for the blow.

"Silver Dollar"

A Favorite Ditty of Ye Olden Turns Up Among the WAC All the Conceivable Places.

By DAMON RUNYON

AT A LITTLE party in a New York home a few months ago, the gab got around to soldier songs and Second Lt. Elizabeth of the WAC, formerly of the world of fashion designing and of considerable note herself, Rice, mentioned a ditty the girls in the "officers' school" of her outfit in Des Moines used to sing as they marched.

The guests asked Lt. Rice to favor them with a vocal rendition of the song and of course she demurred, saying she was not much of a singer, and they said, aw, go on Liz, and on, Liz, and finally she reluctantly complied, preceding her own appraisal of her own vocal ability but entertaining the gathering nicely.

Well, Martin Hickey, a Broadway music publisher, was sitting there wondering what he had done to merit this trial of having to listen to amateur singing when all day he has to hear professional warbling, which is sometimes pretty bad, too, when his ears caught a familiar tune issuing from Lt. Rice's throat.

Hickey did not recognize the verse, but when the lady swung into the refrain he knew he was hearing a song published by his own firm, the Rialto Music Publishing Corp., some years ago and forgotten, then brought to life by much controversy, by this column. It was the good old "Silver Dollar" song.

I FIRST heard it sung by navy officers nearly 20 years ago, and they told me it was a popular song on the Yangtse patrol in China. I happened to mention it a couple of years back, giving the words as I remembered them, and expressing curiosity as to the source of the song.

Hickey called me up and said it was not in his company's files, which led to much comment on my part and to the interest of Jack Klapp of Decca Record Co., which made a phonograph record of it. Then Tommy Tucker picked it up and made a swell arrangement of it for his orchestra, but the radio people would not let him broadcast it, fearful it might offend ladies who listen to air programs.

The objection was to the last line of the refrain, without which there would be no song at all, so the revival died a-bornin', as the saying is, and I heard no more of the "Silver Dollar" until I received a letter from Hickey telling me about hearing Lt. Rice give it with the song, including the last line. So, boys, mates, and I will sing for you the controversial chorus:

If you drop a silver dollar on the floor it will roll
Just because its made round.
There never was a woman, brunette or blonde,
That she wouldn't turn you down.
So listen, everybody, let me get you told.
It's the same old story of old.
That a dollar will travel from hand to hand
And a woman from man to man.

I HAVE forgotten the original verse and Hickey fails to refresh my memory on it, but the entirely different WAC version runs:

Oh, a man without a woman is like a car without a tail,
He's like a boat without a rudder, like a ship without a sail,
Oh, a man without a woman is like a fish cast on the sand,
There's only one thing worse in the universe
It's a woman without any man (I mean woman.)
A woman without any man.

I read this verse to a lady of my acquaintance and she said it was poetically put, sighed and added: "But how true!"

It's a Bad Habit

By Truman Twill

Our friends, the British, according to the items in their newspapers, are worried about American chewing gum. They wonder if the chewing gum habit will deform their jaws, and hundreds of thousands of Yankees are passing out free sticks of the stuff to their hosts.

We do not think there is anything to be afraid of as far as the jaws are concerned, dear friends, but let an old bubble blower and chicle chewer give you a tip on something a lot more serious which can happen to you. One of these days the war will be over, the Yankees will go home and take their smacking wax with them—and then where will you be?

Why you will be just where a lot of civilian Americans are now. You will be gnashing your teeth and flapping your plates on thin air. And it won't be any picnic. You will be elbowing friendly elbow and the neighbory nudge to see if people you suspect of having a little supply of the stuff cached under the counter and asking, "how's about it huh, old pal, old chum?"

And they will look right down your throat and say, "Sorry Toothless, old man, but I haven't got a stick on the place. Come around a week from any Thursday and maybe I can fix you up. The stuff's hard to get, you know." And you will plod along for weeks on end without anything to ruminate on but your leathery tongue and will curse the day you ever learned about chewing gum.

Something else you will do is see some of your fellow aborigines champing away on something that must be chewing gum because they look as if they were getting the last ounce of its yummy goodness, and you will wonder if there is a conspiracy to make you unhappy. You will think you are the forgotten man. You don't know the right people. You have dirty suspicions about black markets and under-dealing. You will get the sours and start muttering about special privilege. And in the course of time you will become a pathetic figure only one step removed from dope fiends and alcoholics.

You will keep an eye eeled for used gum on window sills and underneath chairs and theater seats — and you will be ashamed of yourself. On the rare occasions when you get your hands on a stick of gum you will stick up a hot box on your teeth. You will steal gum from your own children, and when you strike a mine you will keep it mum in case someone has a silly idea about sharing your wad.

That's what will happen to you, gentlemen, and if you are as smart as you are given credit for being you will lay off the chewing gum habit right now and save yourself a load of misery in the months ahead.

Piles Are Never 'Mild'

DANGER IN NEGLECT

No one should ever think of piles (hemorrhoids) as a "mild" disorder.

Although they may seem a mild ailment, especially when not giving pain or inconvenience, piles are in fact tumor formations without tendency to heal themselves, but instead, they are likely, if neglected to keep increasing in size in giving more and more of the rectal area.

From a so-called "mild" case one may be expected to undermine good health, by inviting, predisposing to or aggravating other ailments such as: indigestion, biliousness, stomach trouble, constipation, headaches, pain in the back and down the legs, secondary anemia with its rundown tired feeling, and general nervous irritability.

Therefore, you are distressed by what you have regarded as only a "mild" case of piles, do not by any means, allow that to be a reason for neglecting them.

Removal of piles is the only permanent relief—written guarantee. My method produces little or no discomfort, requires no anaesthetic nor the use of knife or clamp and seldom is the patient required to lose any time from work or other duties.

There is no undue exposure, and you will find that the dignity with which the examination is conducted will quickly make you lose any feeling of self consciousness.

Why not call and learn of this, without cost? The examination is free.

Allied Venture Near Rome Draws London Criticism

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

London newspapers are looking with jaundiced eyes at the Anzio-Nettuno beachhead operations below Rome and suggest the allies may have lost "initial" surprise after forging ashore where they first landed and there was virtually no opposition.

Time may, or may not, justify this harsh criticism but it stirred me we lack [illegible]' warrant such sweeping conclusions as [illegible]. The London Daily Herald, which is among those disappointed, seems to surmise its own excellent answer when it says: "We do not yet know enough to criticize or account for the state of affairs."

We may get a better view of things after the big battle which seems to be boiling up at the beachhead. That's the thing of immediate importance—and it may be a very nasty affair, with heavy casualties.

Hitler indicates determination to annihilate our beachhead force as part of his delaying action in Italy. The great Marshal Rommel, one of the master tacticians of the war, reportedly had been rushed to the scene. The Nazis have had time to move heavy reinforcements from the north, and have even brought in a contingent of Hitler's elite guard, or schutzstaffel, the black-uniformed troops which are the 'old reliables' of the dread gestapo. They are oral and trained in sadistic murder.

Enemy's Advantages

The enemy may be superior numerically, and they have the advantage of positions on high ground overlooking the beachhead. Hitler also has flung into the air more warplanes than the Nazis have displayed in this theater in a long time. German artillery is hammering the allies.

Latest reports say our positions in the beachhead have been further consolidated and bristle with men and guns. This beachhead is thirty miles wide and eight miles deep. With allied superiority in the air, and a naval fleet offshore to back up the allied land forces, we have a right to expect our men to win through. But they haven't got the battle in their pockets yet.

As regards the London criticism, it should be pointed out first that indications are this amphibious operation was intended mainly as a diversionary venture. It wasn't, for example, expected to capture Rome, or anything of that sort. Presumably it was hoped that it would draw German troops away from the main battle line to the south and thereby enable the allied armies to get ahead with their offensive, which has been badly delayed by weather.

One Result

Well, the landing didn't work out that way, but it did force the Nazis to rush troops from the north to the beachhead. That in itself shows how anxious Hitler is to hang onto Italy as long as possible, if for no other reason than to prevent the allies from using the peninsula as a base for invading the Balkans across the Adriatic.

Why didn't the allies drive deep into the higher ground away from the sea-front in the early stages of the invasion? There may be several answers to that, but it seems to me that one of them certainly is that an attacking force can't advance without supplies—and it's mighty hard to get equipment and other supplies, especially the heavy stuff, ashore from barges onto a beach.

Why, the allies haven't had a harbor or pin-head worth for that whole beachhead. They took a chance. That alone would seem to demonstrate that our high command didn't intend the operation to be more than diversionary.

Once the battle of the beachhead is over, however, the allies presumably will move inland and get astride the railway and the Appian Way upon which the Hitlerite battle-line to the south mainly depends for supplies. Thus the amphibious force will be a great menace to the German rear.

19 CLEVELAND PLANT WORKERS STRICKEN

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Feb. 9—Nineteen plant workers at the Cleveland Graphite Bronze Co. were stricken by an unknown illness after eating lunches served in the plant cafeteria, police detective George Clark reported today.

Federal bureau of investigation agents and police launched an immediate investigation after Clark asserted the cafeteria's coffee supply may have been tampered with.

Sixteen of those stricken were treated in hospitals and five were reported in serious condition.

Specimens of all food served are being examined by the city chemist. Dr. James O'Hare, staff physician at Glenville hospital said he believed the illnesses were caused by the coffee. All those stricken, according to police, drank coffee.

"We simply cannot understand it," H. E. Fuller, plant personnel manager, said. "We have not changed the source of our food supply and are eagerly awaiting the findings of the city chemist. We have called in special operatives in the effort to solve the mystery."

STOCKHOLM, Feb. 9 — A declaration that the Finns would not surrender, even if Helsinki were razed, was disclaimed today by the Finnish foreign office.

The Helsinki newspaper Hufvudstadsbladet said that a Finnish foreign office spokesman had denied that the Finnish legation in Washington had issued a statement. The foreign office said it had been advised by its Washington legation that no such comment was made on Secretary of State Hull's renewed warning that Finland must quit the war or accept the consequences.

RELIEF ROLLS CUT BY WAR-TIME JOBS

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 9—War-time demand for workers who couldn't get jobs in peace-time because of minor physical defects was seen by Welfare Director Herbert R. Mooney today as the major factor in cutting Ohio's poor relief costs more than 75 per cent in the past five years.

Figures at the end of 1939, the first year the welfare department supervised state relief activities, showed $29,015,655 spent in caring for 94,149 cases, averaging three persons to a case. Last year the total was $6,671,132 for 12,864 cases.

"In December of 1941, the month of the Pearl Harbor attack," Mooney said, "a total of 14,000 persons were on the relief rolls, with a statewide survey showing that approximately 32,000 of the December total would always remain in the class of unemployables largely because of physical defects and for other reasons of dependency.

"However, in the two-year period following Pearl Harbor, about 20,000 of the 32,000 cases which heretofore were termed unemployable left the relief roll as industry lowered employment standards in an attempt to get sufficient manpower to meet demands of the nation's war machinery."

The state's poor relief bill last year was 13 per cent under the 1942 total of $11,791,988 and 60 per cent below the 1941 aggregate of $16,892,097. The largest number of persons receiving aid in the past five years was 122,186 in February 1940.

Virtually all of the mining city of 18,000 is underpinned by coal workings. During the last seven years there have been many cave-ins, wrecking many homes and buildings. The caves, or subsidence, occur when rolling mine timbers suddenly give away.

After Julie Ann disappeared, miners, attracted by Mrs. Mitchell's screams, scanned the yawning hole—40 feet deep and 10 feet across—and began digging. The work went forward under flood lights during the night while thousands watched.

They worked in relays, suspended in the deep hole by rope, and passing up the dirt bucket by bucket.

SEES AMERICA ON PATH OF GERMANY

By The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 9 — Vincent Kelleher, the worker who refuses to pay taxes on the war plant earnings until after the war, said today that the United States has "traveled far on the road which led to the destruction of Germany."

"I am not being facetious, nor am I joking," Mr. Kelleher declared in a speech prepared for delivery before the Philadelphia Rotary club. "We are but one step removed in this country from the firing squad and the concentration camp."

Repeating that he has been "violently smeared" for advocating in a Kansas City speech that other businesses also defer tax payments in order to build post war reserves, Mrs. Kelleher denied advocating "anything illegal."

"When a taxpayer can not pay the tax, the collector allows him to wait until such time as he can pay, and 6 per cent interest is charged for this non-payment," she said. "When I was informed that for 6 per cent interest I could save my business, I decided to do so, and I fail to see what is illegal or wrong with this plan for all small business.

"The government can not lose. It will have the money now with which to fight the war * * * it will ultimately receive the tax withheld, the additional interest and business will live to pay a tax another day."

13 JAP PLANES SHOT DOWN OVER RABAUL

By The Associated Press

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Feb. 9—Allied airmen have shot down 13 more Japanese planes over Rabaul, New Britain, making 111 enemy aircraft reported destroyed there so far this month and putting this Nipponese south Pacific bastion high on the list of so-called strongholds for the Mikado's pilots.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's communique today said Mitchell medium bombers and Liberator heavies with fighter cover—more than 150 planes—struck Lakunai airdrome at midday Sunday with 121 tons of bombs.

It was the seventh raid on Rabaul since Feb. 1 and the fifth on Lakunai field. One pilot commented, "that runway is in a hell of a mess."

Airframe repair shops and revetments were blown up or set afire, and aside from the 13 enemy planes positively accounted for, the attackers chalked up 10 probables. Damage to allied craft was minor, the communique said.

The 111 Japanese aircraft reported destroyed at Rabaul in February communiques included 19 wrecked on the ground. There also were 30 probables. The allied loss for the period was 38 planes.

Other air operations reported in today's communique were minor, adverse weather hampering widespread activities.

Japanese planes attacked American invasion positions at Arawe and Cape Gloucester, New Britain, some soldiers and natives being wounded at Arawe.

St. Mary Defeats Fostoria 37 to 26

St. Mary Parochial High closed defeated Fostoria St. Wendelin parochials, 37 to 26, last night on the Fostoria floor.

Neither team was at top action, according to St. Mary officials. St. Wendelin was not as sharper as when they battled with the Irish earlier in the season, and the St. Mary cagers, although helped by the return of McGinnis to the team, were unable to gain any considerable lead.

McGinnis, setting the scoring pace for St. Mary with 13 points, spaced them in all quarters. The Marion team was off to an early start, collecting four points on a field goal by Norris and two free throws by Winterstellar before Fostoria came through with its first tally, a free throw by Huth.

Lawler's field goal then turned Marion's total to 6. Fostoria's Emerine then came through with two points on a long field goal. St. Mary, accepting this as the possible start of a Fostoria scoring threat, promptly pointed three more field goals through the loop with Winterstellar, McGinnis and Leser doing the honors in that order. Fostoria managed to get two more points before the quarter ended with Gillig doing the tallying.

In the second quarter, St. Mary built up its lead slightly, McGinnis tallying two field goals and Winterstellar and Leser getting single counters while Fostoria was held to free throws by Stoner and Gillig.

In the last half, St. Mary did little more than protect the margin it already had built up, outscoring the rival team only one point in each of the last two quarters.

Patterson and Gillig for Fostoria began the second half with field goals, and St. Mary responded with a pair of two-point tallies by Gray and Leser. Next it was St. Wendelin's turn with Emerine scoring two points, quickly followed by a field goal for St. Mary by Lawler. Fostoria called time out, surveyed the situation and made a new start that produced three points, a free throw and a short-shot field goal by Stoner. St. Mary countered with a field goal by McGinnis and two free throws by McGinnis and Lawler, giving St. Mary a 28-18 edge as the third quarter ended.

St. Mary pushed its new scoring drive into the early part of the third quarter, with McGinnis, Lawler and Norris tallying field goals in that order. Fostoria called another time out to plan a scoring drive that never materialized. Huth got a free throw for Fostoria, McGinnis scored a field goal for Marion, and then St. Wendelin went into a series of free throws in which tallies were made by Emerine, Stover and Huth, each of the latter two getting two apiece. Lawler scored a free throw for St. Mary and Stoner one for Fostoria to end the game.

HONOR FRITZ HOWELL BEFORE GOING TO N. Y.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 9—More than 200 sports writers, athletic directors, coaches and fans attended a banquet last night in honor of Fritz Howell, Ohio sports editor of The Associated Press, who will join the AP sports staff in New York Feb. 13.

Howell is being succeeded here by Harold Harrison of the Indianapolis Associated Press bureau.

Paul Brown, football coach at Ohio State university, was toastmaster. Speakers included George M. Trautman, president of the American Baseball association; Billy Southworth, manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, and L. W. St. John, director of athletics at Ohio State.

Mayor James A. Rhodes issued a special proclamation paying tribute to Howell.

Personal Foul Rule Under Fire from Two Big 10 Coaches

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 9—Two coaches who did a lot of bench-quirming during last week-end's rough-and-tumble Ohio State-Purdue basketball games came up today with suggestions for changes in the personal foul rule.

Harold G. Olsen of Ohio State and Joe Dienhart, assistant coach at Purdue, each thought five instead of the present four violations should be permitted, but disagreed on how this should be done.

"Something has to be done about the personal foul rule," Olsen said, "and I think it ought to be changed to allow a flat five personals. When they eliminated the center jump they added several minutes of actual playing time to every game but still a player goes out of the game when he gets four personals—just the same as it was when we had the center jump."

Dienhart suggested that any player accumulating three personals in the first half be allowed two more in the last half before being ejected.

A player would go out of the game, however, if he collected four personals in the first half.

In last Friday night's game, won by Purdue, the Buckeyes finished with five players having three personals on them. Purdue lost two men and had two others with three fouls. In the Saturday the Boilermakers, won by Ohio the Boilermakers lost three men and had two with three personals at the finish while Ohio State lost one and had three with three fouls each.

SNATCHES OF SPORTS

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Feb. 9—Speaking of baseball, as a lot of folks have been lately, Lieut. (JG) James L. Bates of Winston-Salem, N. C., tells this story of American boys' fondness for the game. . . . About a year ago six American merchant ships went to Murmansk on a "four month" trip that was stretched to eight months when convoys to the north Russian port were temporarily discontinued. . . . To pass the time they formed the "White Sea baseball league" with six teams of Navy armed guard gunners and merchant seamen. . . . The gunners fashioned bats out of timber found on the docks, made baseballs of cores from old rubber boots, yarn from old sox and sweaters and covers from discarded shoes and used hot shellmen's asbestos glove for mitts. . . . They even played night games by the light of the midnight sun. . . . Wonder what those guys think about the rigors of northern training?

The intercollegiate 4-A indoor track meet likely will include a mile special for "old grads" and that may give California's Johnny Fulton the chance he wants to try that route just once. . . . Bucky Harris, reportedly under consideration for the Braves management, definitely has not discussed the subject with anyone on the Boston club. . . . Gus Dorais, the Detroit Lions' coach, went west to snoop for a little pro football talent but has been kept so busy making aftermeal speeches that he hasn't found many players . . . Just a social lion, eh?

Bill Gomar, the old Milwaukee flyweight, must feel right at home in the Army in one respect. He landed in one of those far northern posts where the only entertainment is boxing. . . . George Yarde, who plays basketball for the Air-force Basic Training Center 10 at Greensboro, N. C., was a semi-pro courtman with the "Tyndall Tramps," whose playing garb was tattered overalls, derby hats, etc., and then grew a beard to play baseball with the eastern House of David team. . . . He must have been prepping for a job with "dem bums."

LARKIN, COSTANTINO FIGHT IN GARDEN

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Feb. 9—Tippy Larkin, who thought he beat Bobby Ruffin, and Lulu Costantino, who thought he beat Benu Jack, clash tonight in a 10-rounder at Madison Square Garden that may produce another conference contender in the lightweight division.

Larkin, a Garfield, N. J., lad regarded as a better puncher than Lulu, ruled a 2 to 1 favorite in the overnight line, but the price is likely to drop as ringtime approaches.

Promoter Mike Jacobs, who anticipates a crowd of some 12,000 and a gross gate of around $35,000, isn't talking, but he probably hopes the scrap doesn't wind up a draw like the last two fights in the Garden, the Larkin-Ruffin and the Sammy Angott-Jack affairs. A winner would be regarded as a likely challenger to the survivor of the forthcoming elimination championship bouts between Jack, Bob Montgomery and Angott.

Larkin may forfeit $1,000 if he fails to weigh 137 pounds or less at the weighing-in ceremonies. He weighed 138½ against Ruffin, but was up to 140 last week.

BALLOT CONTROVERSY SETTLEMENT LIKELY

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9—The armed services vote issue was wedged firmly between a "uniform ballot" senate and a "states rights" house today but Chairman Worley (D-Tex) of the house elections committee voiced confidence it could be extricated.

The senate, after weeks of debate, passed a bill late yesterday providing a uniform federal ballot for service men and women, and routed it over to the house which last Friday had voted emphatically to leave the balloting machinery in the hands of the states.

It was expected the problem would be turned over to a joint conference committee, whose duty it would be to adjust two directly opposite points of view. There was considerable talk of compromise in the capital corridors.

UNION VOTES CANTEEN GIFT, BOND PURCHASE

Central Labor Union Also Recommends WMC Appointments.

A contribution of $25 was made to the Marion Service Canteen and the purchase of a $100 bond was authorized at a meeting of the Marion Central Labor Union, AFL, last night in the Labor Union hall. The organization recommended the appointment of John F. Hostor of 212 Orchard street, a member of Roosevelt Lodge No 1281, Machinists, as a delegate on the war manpower committee for the Marion Area, and Thomas E Reed Jr, of 194 Lake street as alternate. The appointment is to fill a vacancy made by the resignation of L. B. Geer. The appointment will become effective upon confirmation by the regional district office at Cleveland.

Mustering-Out Pay Now Ready in Ohio

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Feb 9—Mustering-out payments now are being given eligible servicemen at the time they are discharged from the Army, the Fifth Service Command announced today.

Officers at Fort Hayes, command headquarters, said the policy of issuing funds at the mustering-out point went into effect Feb. 3 when the law providing for such payments became operative.

Veterans honorably discharged or relieved from active duty prior to Feb. 3, however, are required to submit a certificate of discharge from service and an informal type of certified application to designated Army finance offices.

The office accepting such applications from Fifth Service Command residents in Ohio is the Mutual Home Building, 120 West Second Street, Dayton.

MAP POST-WAR PLANS AT UPPER SANDUSKY

UPPER SANDUSKY, Feb. 9—Councilmen here are considering ways and means of providing financial aid for proposed surveys of possible post war projects in Upper Sandusky under consideration by the state highway department.

State highway engineer for division 1, O. C. Konli of Lima, told councilmen that the post war plans now being formulated include bridge construction, grade separation, new road construction, and the widening and resurfacing of existing roads.

One of the projects under consideration in this district is the grade separation of route 30-N, and the Chesapeake & Ohio railroad at the west edge of Upper Sandusky. Of even more interest to Upper Sandusky is the selection of a place for a crossing elimination at the Pennsylvania railroad on one of the principal streets of the town.

Other projects being considered for Wyandot county, Mr. Konl said, were the resurfacing of North and South Sandusky avenue, and of a section of Wyandot avenue, the widening and resurfacing of the Lincoln highway east of here, and the completion of a fill and straightening project near the Wyandot county home on State Route 23.

PRISON BRUTALITY CHARGED BY THOMAS

Complaint Filed with Attorney General Biddle.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Feb. 9—Norman Thomas said today he had submitted to Attorney General Biddle what he described as documentary evidence of "horrible brutalities" inflicted upon prisoners by guards at the medical center of the federal bureau of prisons at Springfield, Mo.

The Socialist leader said he also planned to demand a congressional investigation of the institution.

The matter was brought to his attention, Thomas said, through affidavits from prisoners which were smuggled out of the institution and given to Thomas' brother, Dr. Evan W. Thomas.

These documents charged, Thomas added, that prisoners were beaten, pounded with fire-hose, deprived of food, tortured with burning cigarets, confined for considerable periods in stripped stone cells without heat or furnishings, and forced to sleep prone on bare concrete floors.

BRITISH CHURCHMEN CRITICIZE BOMBINGS

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Feb. 9—The Archbishop of Canterbury and the Bishop of Chichester entered allied bombings of German cities today in the house of lords.

"Recent attacks upon cities like Hamburg, Frankfurt and Berlin seem to me to go a long way beyond what hitherto has been declared the policy of the government and the bomber command," the Archbishop of Canterbury said.

"The policy of obliteration is openly acknowledged," the Bishop of Chichester asserted. "That is not a justifiable act of war."

The Archbishop, head of the Church of England, also cited a tendency "to exult and gloat" over the destruction of German cities and terms "among some of our people."

Replying as leader of the upper house, Lord Cranborne said the RAF never had indulged in pure terror raids.

Lord Cranborne declared 80 per cent of the German fighter planes now were tied down to combat Allied attacks.

"That has greatly facilitated the efforts of our heroic Russian allies to liberate their own country from the Nazi yoke," he said.

He said virtually the entire Krupp Armament Works covering two square miles had been destroyed at Essen. Attacks last summer on Hamburg cost the German 400,000,000 man hours, he added.

"It is to me full justification for the present bomber campaign," he said. "I cannot save the Bishop of Chichester any hope that we shall abate our bombing policy. On the contrary, we shall continue it in increasing power and with most crushing effect until final victory is secured."

Cold Wave Forecast To Hit Ohio Tonight

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 9—A cold wave accompanied by strong winds will strike the western part of Ohio tonight and blanket the entire state by Thursday night, the weather bureau reported today.

Meteorologist George W. Mehling predicted a low of 10 degrees above zero by Thursday night in central Ohio, and that the state was due for the coldest weather it has seen in several weeks.

He said the worst of the cold snap would be over by Saturday night.

CHICAGO, Feb 9—The most severe cold snap of the winter, which will bring below-zero temperatures to the northern plain and Great Lakes region, will strike within the next 24 to 48 hours, Forecaster H. A. Downs said today.

ARRESTED FOLLOWING ATTACK ON WOMAN

Man Bound Over to Grand Jury Under $2,000 Bond.

Robert M Goodman 29 of 389 West Center street, was arrested by city police Tuesday night when he allegedly grabbed a young woman near McDaniel's Garage, choked her and attempted to drag her between the building.

The attack occurred about 8:30 p. m. The woman managed to free herself and ran to police headquarters where she described the man. Police arrested him a few minutes later about a block from where the attack occurred. She identified him later as the attacker, police said.

A preliminary hearing was held after Goodman pleaded not guilty in municipal court. He was bound over to the grand jury under a $2,000 bond and was committed to Marion county jail until bond is furnished.

SOME STOCKS ATTRACT BIDS

Many Sections of Market, However, Unable To Extend Gains.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Feb. 9—Rails, rubbers and specialties attracted higher bids but other sections of today's stock market were unable to extend Tuesday's advance.

Volume was low despite fair activity in the first hour.

U. S. Rubber led the upturn in that group with Goodyear and Goodrich as runners up. Such stocks as General Motors, Sears Roebuck, Johns-Manville, J. C. Penney and Texas Co. were moderately improved. Rail issues moved up selectively in the bond market. Commodities were steady, [illegible] day.

WHEAT PRICES UP MORE THAN A CENT

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Feb. 9—Wheat futures climbed more than a cent at times today, and the upturn encouraged rye and barley to fractional gains. Oats showed little change most of the session.

Some scattered buying in the wheat pit was attributed to mills and cash interests. Demand for feed grains also continued aggressive. The colder weather was considered favorable for corn movement and bookings to arrive were placed at 190,000 bushels today.

Pitfalls of Love

By ADELE GARRISON

I MUTED my voice still more as I sounded a note of caution. "Remember that Milner's eyes are on us," I murmured. "Adams, in all probability, will talk only to me. If he doesn't speak to you directly, pretend to pay no attention to what he says, but go on talking among yourselves and eating, although," I finished with a smile, "I shall not forbid you to keep your ears open."

"Seeing you've a fat chance of forcing us do anything else," Mary quipped audaciously. "Human nature, you know, can be tried just so far."

Adams Bows

"Hush!" I whispered sternly, and then Adams was at the table, bowing to me.

"The phony part of this will be out loud," he murmured from the side of his mouth, "but my dope to you, and what he has told me to tell you confidentially, will be uttered in this fashion."

"I understand," I said quickly, and he began to speak in louder tones, almost as if he were reciting a carefully learned speech.

"Mr. Milner wishes me to present his apologies to you," he said, then rapidly muttered: "He thinks you're here to help Mrs. Underwood, over there in mourning, but he's not sure how much you know about her daughter, over there at that table with the two men and the two other women."

He switched back to loud talking again.

Very Sorry

"He is convinced that he mistook you for some one else, and he is very sorry, indeed. You'd better answer this one," he added in his muted tones, and I answered him in a louder voice than I use in public places.

"Please tell Mr. Milner that his apology is accepted," I said formally, and again Adams dropped his voice.

"He wants me to tell you that there are reasons personal to himself why he doesn't wish your party to remain very long, but I persuaded him that he couldn't very well ask you to leave before you had finished your dinner. But didn't your father say in his wire he would be here soon?"

"I expect him within the hour," I said, out of the corner of my mouth. "He will telephone the hotel as soon as he gets in; he will be told to telephone the apartment, and Mr. Bickett will direct him over here."

Adams heaved a sigh of distinct relief.

Start Anything

"That was the way I understood it," he said, "but I'm glad to verify it. So just dawdle over your dinner until your father gets here. Milner won't start anything while you're here. He'll slip the word to the lads with the young lady to hold everything till you people have gone. I'll go back and tell him I've persuaded you to go as soon as your dinner is over, and that for my part, I'm sure you don't know anything about the young woman's being here, although you may know Mrs. Underwood. I'll tell him I'm not sure about that. Now here's something you're not going to like, but I think you'd better accept it gracefully."

He paused, while I braced myself to hear something unpleasant.

"Mr. Milner begs you to accept his hospitality as well as his apologies," Adams said, raising his voice again, "He wants to show you how deeply sorry he is for his mistake, and asks if you will not permit him to serve your dinner on the house.

Insincere

My first impulse, of course, was to refuse the offer indignantly. Then the warning words of Adams, as well as the admonitory look he gave me, made me steel myself to the utterance of the most insincere words I ever have spoken.

"Please tell Mr. Milner that is wholly unnecessary," I said, but if it will make him feel any better, I shall accept his hospitality gladly. Tell him thank you for me."

"I'll do that," he said, in ordinary tones, then added softly:

"I can't help you until the final pay-off comes, no matter what happens. But if you need anyone, those two men at the table just behind you are your father's. They've been instructed to watch your every movement, and to spring to your aid if the necessity arrives."

He bowed, and then turned and went back to Milner's table, where he began to talk rapidly in reply to the questions with which the owner of the restaurant was obviously plying him.

And then, Crump, the waiter, was serving us the soup, and when he came to me, he whispered, "Don't ask me why, but stand up for just a second, on some pretext or other."

Questions About Teeth

TODAY I am going to answer questions often asked about teeth.

Which is better, tooth paste or powder?

No real difference. Individual preference determines the choice. They are the same except for the material added to the powder to make it paste.

Can you make your own tooth powder?

Yes--one part finely pulverized table salt, and three parts of baking soda.

Does chewing gum help or harm the teeth?

There is no scientific evidence that the exercise helps the teeth or stimulates the gums. The sugar in chewing gum may contribute to dental decay.

Should one of the primary or temporary teeth be removed when it appears there will not be room for the permanent set?

Not as a rule. Because the primary teeth are smaller than the permanent teeth and their presence stimulates the jaw to grow and make room for the permanent teeth.

What should be done if the (permanent) central incisor tooth of an 8-year-old child is broken accidentally?

Fractured teeth are an individual problem. Each case must be worked out by the dentist himself. Usually when no protection is given to the fractured tooth the pulp dies and the tooth may have to be removed. Sometimes it is only necessary for the dentist to smooth the rough edges of the tooth.

What should be done about a wide space between the two front teeth of an 8- or 9-year-old child?

Usually nothing need be done because the other permanent teeth as they appear tend to push the central teeth together.

What should be done about the saw-edge on newly erupted incisor teeth?

When these teeth are in proper position the pointed cusps begin to wear and the normal smooth edge is left.

Should x-ray be taken of children's teeth?

Yes, as often or even more often than an adult's, in order to discover disease conditions and to follow up the development of the tooth germ. Also x-ray of a child's mouth will show whether the permanent teeth are in proper position. X-ray will also show whether or any supernumerary teeth are present.

If the primary teeth are poor will the second ones also be bad?

Not necessarily. The second teeth are formed when the baby is born. If the child has an adequate diet with a proper allowance of calcium after birth these teeth should be well formed.

At what age should a child start using a tooth brush?

As soon as all the primary teeth have erupted, which is about two to two and a half years of age and the parent will do most of the brushing for a time. It is a good idea to let the child brush its own teeth, the parent going over them afterwards. Thus the child is forming the habit of regular teeth brushing while the parent is doing the actual cleaning.
